EPA Reconsideration of Proposed Industrial Boiler MACT Rule Increases Costs

“Senate Urged to Save Manufacturing Jobs”

A just released study by HIS Global Insight evaluates the December EPA reconsideration of the proposed Industrial Boiler Rule. The report shows that the capital costs actually increased from $14.4 to $15 billion primarily due to EPA’s more severe PM and HCl standards. The reconsideration increases the jobs put at risk up from 230,000 to 240,000.
